Tillandsia - Air Plants (Monroe store only)

Tillandsias are one of the worlds only true AIR PLANTS. Tillandsias are called AIR PLANTS because their leaves trap water in the air for nourishment. Since their roots don't feed them, they grow without soil.

Tillandsias are members of the bromeliad family and are native to Latin American countries. They are found clinging to rocks, tree branches, cliffs and even telephone lines. Tillandsias are hardy and adapt well to most "captive environments". With minimum care, you'll watch your plants grow, bloom and reproduce.
